Mr. C. C. Head, county agent of Quay County will be in Clovis May 7th to attend the Curry County local leader conference.

He is on the program for a discussion of how to train stock judging teams.
The Quay County team was the high score team of New Mexico last year.

The meeting at Ruth at 10:00 o'clock Saturday morning was an interesting one. A number of the club members are planning to be at Hollene Friday morning for the canning demonstration given by Miss Richardson.

The Latest: Jap-a-lac your old olive and pickle bottles and have some new vases for those spring flowers.

Grady Club is organized and ready to go. Miss Edna McCasland is general chairman and Miss Mildred Garrett is general secretary.

Miss Myrtle Thomas is taking the place of Mrs. R. A. Crawford as club advisor. Mrs. Crawford will be gone for the summer.

The Priscilla Sewing Club of Ranchvale has elected the following officers: President, Lettie Maness; Vice-Pres. Opal Tate; Sec.-Treas., Dola Brunk; Local Leader, Miss Ethel Bell.

The Priscilla Club won the Singer Sewing Machine last year.

Mora County Has Leading Pig Club.

"The Mora County Pig Club is an organization of which New Mexico should be proud," says W. H. Trentman of the Junior Extension Department after attending a regular meeting of the club held April 22. The club is composed of boys and girls each working under one of three divisions, Poland China, Duroc Jersey or Hampshire.

Messrs. Robert Sterrett and J. R. Dillard, local farmers and hog breeders, are responsible for the organization of the work and the funds needed for the purchase of pure bred gilts are furnished by the bank at Wagon Mound. Miss Ruth Irwin of Levy is president of the club which meets the first Saturday of each month, at which meetings practical and interesting talks are given on hog raising. The club demonstration is to last for a period of two years and an exhibit will be held each fall.

Household Hints.

The women of Mountain View Farm Bureau, Bernalillo County, are financing the hot lunch for their school by giving a series of entertainments. The hot lunch has become an every-day affair in this school and is free to all pupils because of this community interest on the part of the farm bureau patrons. The home demonstration agent and teacher selected the equipment to be used. The women furnished the funds for this and the foods used. The school furnishes the stove.

An inexpensive and serviceable substitute for table linen is "India Head." This can now be purchased in three widths, 36 inch, 44 inch, and 54 inch, at from 35 to 50 cents a yard. The 54 inch width is fine for table or lunch cloths. It has enough weight to dye smoothly and excellently.

Have you tried the Japanese crepe for children's clothes? It comes in lovely colors, launders easily and wears well. It does not require ironing. It is thirty-two inches wide and costs about fifty cents a yard.

Try those crinkled crepe bedspreads instead of the heavy ones that are so difficult to handle and hard to keep clean. They are splendid to use during dusty weather as they can be laundered as easily as an ordinary sheet.

The West Chapel Club held its first meeting Saturday afternoon and there was a good attendance. Prof. Davis gave an excellent talk. Miss Maida Alcorn, Tom Davis and Louis Chapman are the leaders for this group.

Every house should have a business corner. Make one if it's only the top bureau drawer.

It is the rightful heritage of children to be taught how to work.

Riddles to Guess

1. The clock strikes twelve. George and his sister stood under the church tower and heard the clock strike 6. George looked at his watch while it did so and said, "It took 30 seconds to strike 6." His sister then replied, "How long would it take to strike 12?" George answered, "60 seconds of course." George was wrong. What is the correct answer?

2. How did he measure milk?
Mrs. Thompson ordered 4 quarts of milk from her milkman, who had 8 quarts in his can but no measure by which he could measure it. Mrs. Thompson had two jugs, one able to hold 5 quarts, the other 3 quarts. The milkman said he could not measure four quarts with these, but Mrs. Thompson's little boy, Charlie, showed him how to do it. How did he do it?

3. How many eggs?
If a hen and a half lays an egg and a half in a day and a half, how many eggs will one hen lay in six days?

4. How much does a brick weigh?
A brick weighs 6lb and half of its own weight. What is the weight of the brick?

Answers to last week's riddles.

1. Mabel bought 6 apples which 8 cents, and 6 oranges at 1 cent each, making 14 cents for the whole. The simplest way to find this is to count what she paid for three of each, which would be four cents and three cents, making 7 cents. So she got twice 3 of each for 14 cents.

2. How many girls are there?
Suppose we first give each of the children 25 cents each. This would use $12.50. We have $2.00 left to be used in giving another five cents each to the boys. Now there are 40 of the 5 cent pieces in $2.00, so there must be 40 boys. Therefore there are 10 girls.

Dick Whittington and his cat.
As we talked about cats last week, we will have a story about a boy and his cat at this time. This is an old, old story, and has been in many old school readers. It is about a boy named Dick Whittington who was very poor. He was an orphan and a Lancashire, England, boy. His cat was a half starved stray that he had found and kept. He fed and petted it and it was his only friend in the world. We shall see how well he was repaid for his kindness.

Dick thought the streets of London were paved with gold, so one day he decided to go there and make his fortune. But on reaching the great city he found that hard stones made up the streets. He knew just how hard they were for he slept on them many a night. At last he got work as scullery-boy in a rich home. The owner, a rich merchant, was a good man, but his cook, being a wicked woman, beat Dick every day and put him in a garret at night to sleep. Many rats and mice would have tormented Dick if his cat had not made short work of them by killing every one that came.

The merchant was a foreign trader. He would fill ships with all kinds of goods, sending them to far off countries where they sold for much money. As he was a kind man he let his servants send anything they wanted to.

One day his pretty little girl came sell, along with his goods, on the ships. To Dick in the scullery and told him of the ships and asked him what he wanted to put in the sale that was being sent away. Dick had nothing but his cat which she coaxed him to send away. To please her, he parted with his best friend.

But Dick soon regretted sending the cat. He grew lonesome for it and the rats and mice came to his garret in swarms. The cook beat him more than ever.

The pests that kept him awake at night robbed him of his sleep so that he could not do his work as well during the day. Such a hard time he had that he started to run away.

When he reached Holloway he sat down to rest. He heard the Bow Bells chiming and thought they said to him this, "Turn again Dick Whittington, Thrice Lord-Mayor of London." Dick tried to laugh, but cried instead. He turned and went to Finchley. There, the bells seemed to talk to him again, so he turned and went to Enfield. The bells seemed to repeat their message again.

Dick thought the matter over seriously, deciding that as Alice, the merchant's daughter was kind to him, only the cook mistreating him, that he would return to his master again. As soon as he reached there he heard that the ship on which his cat went had sold at a great price.

The captain had been invited to dinner with the king of the Blackmoor lands. At the table rats and mice came in in great crowds and ate every crumb of food. The poor king said he was starving, as this happened every day. All the lions and tigers he had bought caught no mice. The captain brought Dick's cat to the palace and it killed the pests so quickly that the king offered six bags of gold for it. He said he would have given half of his kingdom for it.

Now the mean cook told the merchant that Dick was only a poor scullery lad without friends and that he did not need to give him the gold. But the merchant being honest did so and saw to it that Dick was raised as his own son.

In later years Dick married the sweet and pretty Alice. He was really made Lord Mayor of London also.

When he died he left a great fortune to poor people.

Can you afford to do without insurance at this price?

We do not expect to write all the insurance in Clovis by any means. We do hope to get some of it and EVERY LITTLE BIT HELPS and our motto in writing insurance will be the same we use in our loan and real estate business—PROMPT SERVICE.
